This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

AT the suggestion of many Old Tonbridgians, I propose to introduce the Register by giving a sketch of the History of the School.

The beginnings of its history are enveloped in some mystery and doubt. It is an undeniable fact that Sir Andrew Judde obtained from King Edward VI., a few months before the King's death, in 1553, a Charter, sanctioning the foundation of a Free Grammar School at Tonbridge. But how soon the Founder put his plans into execution we have been unable to ascertain. Documentary evidence of the School's existence dates back to the first year of Queen Elizabeth's reign, and on the strength of this fact, Dr. Thomas Knox, the first historian of the School, has based the assertion that Sir Andrew Judde held his scheme in abeyance during the religious troubles of Queen Mary's reign. This statement, however, is a mere theory, which is shown to be a mistake by the fact that the Founder's death took place some months before the death of Queen Mary, and yet, that, in his will, he mentions the School as in working condition. The documentary evidence to which we have alluded commences, in fact, when the Skinners' Company, in accordance with the provisions of Sir Andrew's will, became the Trustees of the School. The name of the first Head Master, John Proctor, is well known, as he is mentioned in connection with the School by many contemporary writers. He was a man of some mark, and his story suggests, if it does not supply with certainty, the missing date. John Proctor wrote a history of Wyat's Rebellion, which took place in 1554, and it is remarkable that almost the only trivial incident mentioned in the book is the following. Relating how one, Antony Knevet, started from Tonbridge to join the rebels, the author says that "after he was leapt to his horse, he toke one by the hand, and said: 'fare ye well! and if you happe to heare that I am taken, never beleve it, for undoubtedlye I wyll eyther die in the felde, or achive my purpose.' But within twenty-four hours he brake his promise, and ranne awaye no faster than his legges could carye him." In reading this episode, one cannot help thinking that the writer himself was the one whom Knevet "toke by the hand"; and, if John Proctor was then at Tonbridge, it was almost certainly in the capacity of Head Master of the School; for his own native county was not Kent but Dorsetshire.

But perhaps the foundation-stone of the original building, which is now inserted in the wall over the door of the Head Master's house, supplies the most valuable piece of evidence as to the date at which the existence of the School actually commenced; for, on the stone may still be read the following inscription, "This Shole, made bi Sir Andro Judde, Knight, and gevin to the Company of Skinners, Ano 1553." We may mention as a fact also bearing on the date of the foundation of the School, that the Skinners' account books for the year 1559-60 give details of extensive repairs in the School building, which could scarcely have been necessary if the School had only been erected in 1558. Lastly, John Proctor attained to a high reputation as Head of the School, and yet his successor was appointed in 1559. Can it be believed that John Proctor could have become eminent as Head Master of Tonbridge if he had reigned only a single year? On the whole, we are forced to the conclusion that the School was actually erected and at work very soon after the original Charter was granted.

Under the first three Head Masters there were two Scholars who became notable men. The first of these was Francis Thynne, a renowned antiquary, and a man learned in the study of Heraldry and Genealogy. He filled successively the offices of Blanche Lyon Poursuivant and Lancaster Herald. The other was Sir Robert Heath, a great Lawyer, who became Chief Justice of the Common Pleas. John Stockwood, the third Head Master (1574-86), wrote several educational works, which had a great reputation in their day. For one of these books, epigrams in praise of their Master were written by ten of his pupils at Tonbridge School, one of whom was William Hatch, who was also his successor in the Head Master's office. Of Hatch's time at the School very little is known, as also of that of his three immediate successors. In 1640, Thomas Horne, D.D., became Head Master, having previously held the same position at Leicester Grammar School. He wrote several educational books, and among his pupils one of the most noteworthy was Thomas Cheeseman, a blind scholar, who, in spite of his disability, obtained a Smythe Exhibition and took his degree at Oxford. He was afterwards ordained, and was, for a time, deprived of his living in Berkshire and imprisoned at Reading for Nonconformity. In 1649 Dr. Horne was succeeded by Dr. Nicholas Grey, who had been previously, in succession, Head Master of Charterhouse School, of Merchant Taylors' School, and of Eton College, from which last office he was ejected in the troublous times of the Commonwealth. Dr. Grey was succeeded at Tonbridge by Mr. John Goad, but the latter held the office for only two years, being then transferred to Merchant Taylors' School, where he remained for twenty years. Under Mr. Goad's successor, Dr. Christopher Wase, Thomas Herbert, eighth Earl of Pembroke, was educated at the School. He is noted chiefly for having been First Plenipotentiary of England at the negotiations which preceded the Treaty of Ryswick. Dr. Wase was followed by Thomas Roots, who had formerly been a Scholar and Smythe Exhibitioner. Mr. Roots' Head-Mastership seems to have been a period of depression for the School, as the annual Examiner reports again and again that there are "no Scholars fit for the Universities." We also find that the Governors made many vain attempts to get rid of Mr. Roots, but whether they at last succeeded, or whether he died in harness, is not known. His successor, Richard Spencer, held office for nearly thirty years, and wrote some educational works, which had a high reputation in their day. At length he retired, and James Cawthorn took his place. He was noted for his severity, and his ghost was supposed to haunt the dormitory of the old School-building. One of his pupils was George Austen, the father of Jane Austen, the novelist. Another was Lord Whitworth, afterwards noted as the ablest diplomatist of his time. The most marked incident of his career was when, as Ambassador at Paris during the Peace of Amiens, he was twice publicly insulted by the Emperor Napoleon. Lord Eardley and Colonel James, ancestor of the present Colonel James, of Ightham Lodge (who is also an Old Tonbridgian), were at the School with Lord Whitworth. Another of Mr. Cawthorn's pupils was William Woodfall, better known as Memory Woodfall, who first attempted, with any success, to report the debates in the House of Commons. He was also the printer of the "Letters of Junius." After Mr. Cawthorn, came Mr. Johnson Towers, of whose times nothing noteworthy is recorded. On the retirement, in 1770, of Mr. Towers, he was succeeded by the Rev. Vicesimus Knox, the first of three members of one family, who successively governed the School. The first Vicesimus Knox had one pupil who became a distinguished man. This was Anthony Hart, who in course of time was appointed Lord Chancellor of Ireland. The second Vicesimus Knox was an author of some mark; the titles of his principal works are "Liberal Education," "Winter Evenings," "Personal Nobility," and "The Spirit of Despotism." Several men of distinction were educated under the second Vicesimus at Tonbridge School. Among these may be mentioned three brothers named Clarke, of whom the first was the great traveller; the second, an author of some merit, and also Lord Nelson's Chaplain at the battle of Trafalgar; and the third, a Naval Captain, who served under Earl St. Vincent and Lord Nelson. Pierre Dumoustier, one of Napoleon's Generals, was also at Tonbridge under the younger Dr. V. Knox, and was so attached to his old School and Master that he paid a visit to them during the brief interval of peace between England and France, known as the Peace of Amiens. Sir Sidney Smith, the Admiral, often called "the Hero of Acre," was yet another pupil of this Head Master, as was Julius Hare, the author of "Guesses at Truth" and other works, and Sir Archibald Campbell, who became a military commander of some note. On the retirement of the second Vicesimus, he was succeeded by Dr. Thomas Knox, his son, and the grandson of the first Vicesimus. Some years after Dr. Thomas's accession, he raised a question as to the government of the School, maintaining that the Skinners' Company were only the Trustees of the lands and houses bequeathed by the Founder, whereas the Company held that these lands were their absolute property, provided that they kept up the School. The question was finally decided in accordance with Dr. Thomas Knox's view, and soon afterwards a New Scheme was drawn up, under which sixteen Exhibitions to the Universities, each of £100 a year for four years, were instituted. Under Dr. Thomas Knox were several Scholars who have risen to distinction, most of whom are still living. Among these may be mentioned the Bishop of Derry, Bishop Courtenay (formerly of Jamaica), Canon Rowsell, Admiral Courtenay, Viscount Strangford, and Generals Hassard, Gott, and Jordan. At Dr. Thomas Knox's death in 1843 Dr. Welldon became Head Master, and held the office for thirty-three years—a period of steadily-increasing prosperity, which witnessed the erection of the Chapel (in 1859), the Cricket Pavilion (in 1860), and the new School Buildings (in 1863). Among Dr. Welldon's principal pupils were the Dean of Derry, General Henry Brackenbury, C.B., Colonel Charles Brackenbury, General Septimus Hodgson, Major-General Sir Henry Collett, K.C.B., Sir Maxwell Melvill, E. Cooper Willis, Q.C., and the Bishop of Brisbane. From 1876 to 1890 the Rev. T. B. Rowe was Head Master, in whose time a New Scheme came into force, and also the Gymnasium and Science Buildings were erected. On Mr. Rowe's resignation, he was succeeded by the Rev. Joseph Wood, D.D., previously Head Master of Leamington College, under whom the number of Scholars has risen to the unexampled figure of 350. The last event to be recorded in the history of the School is a large extension of the main block of buildings, the foundations for which were laid in the Autumn of 1892.

* In Dr. Knox's and Mr. Rivington's Histories of the School, 1558 is given as the date of the appointment of the first Head-Master; but all that can be proved is that the School came under the management of the Skinners' Company in that year or the next. The Founder's Will shows clearly that the School previously existed, but remained in his own hands during his lifetime. There is also evidence, though not amounting to proof, that John Proctor was Head-Master at the time of Wyat's Rebellion in 1554. See Introduction.

Being ejected under the Uniformity Act, he went to London and frequently preached there. Afterwards returning into the country, he used to preach at his own house at Market Ilsley. But at length, under a writ "de excom capiendo," he was imprisoned at Reading for 15 weeks, when he was released by an order of the King in Council, on the intercession of the prisoner's friends. After King Charles' indulgence, in 1672, he again preached openly, and held his living to a good old age. One of his funeral sermons, entitled, "Death compared to a Sleep," was printed and published. One authority describes him as "Evangelical Minister at East Ilsley." This must probably have been just before his imprisonment.

Rev. James Cawthorn, Master, who died in this year, viz., 1761.

* This School List of the year 1761 is copied from a Schoolboy's note-book lent by the Rev. James Buttanshaw (not himself the writer, though an Old Tonbridgian). The boy's list must have been copied about 1829, from some list then in existence. The note-book contains, besides the list of 1761, lists of 1829 and 1830.

The "Witworth" in the above list is, undoubtedly, Lord Whitworth, who is known from other sources to have been at the School under Mr. Cawthorn and his successor. The "Hull" in the same list must be Christopher Hull, of Sidcup, to whom Lord Whitworth was fag. Lord Whitworth became an officer in the Guards, and filled various posts at the Courts of Russia, Poland, and Denmark. His seat was at Knowle, where he raised at his own expense the Holmesdale Battalion of Infantry, six hundred strong. He is celebrated as the ablest diplomatist of his time and for having been twice publicly insulted by Napoleon, when performing his duty as British Ambassador at Paris during the Peace of Amiens. He died in 1815.

Lord Eardley, and Colonel James of Ightham Lodge, Kent, were contemporaries of Lord Whitworth at Tonbridge.
